

Twelve Thousand People See Great Football Game Here

Photo by Foster, 11th Street.

CROWDS SURGE MADLY AND TALK OF SPORT

Broad Street Always Congested, but Good-Natured Throng Kept Within Bounds.

MASS OF COLOR EVERYWHERE

Sidewalks Like Shop Windows, Noise Often Rising Like Roar at the Park.

Hardly had the residents of the city looked out upon the gray fog yesterday before the Thanksgiving crowd began to surge up and down Broad Street, flying the colors of the rival universities which were to do battle on the gridiron in the afternoon. Gradually it became thicker and thicker as the incoming trains poured their burden of humanity into the streets.

Broad Street was the point to which every one gravitated, and Broad Street, except for the two hours or more during which the game was being played, was the scene of full of jolly men, pretty women and bright colors until far into the night, when there were few left save the stragglers, who made their way home as best they could, now and then singing a bit of a college song or getting off the scrap of a yell. As to color, the jostling mass was not unlike the shop windows, which were draped impartially with the Orange and Blue of Virginia and the Blue and White of North Carolina. To be sure, the wearers of the former had more incentive to indulge in hilarity after the game, but the Tarheels, plucky in defeat as in victory, made their share of the noise.

Got Comfort Over the Wires.

After the sad tale of 31 to 0 had sunk into the hearts of the supporters of the White and Blue, and been cast off as a matter of history, there came a rift in the dark cloud when the tidings came from Norfolk that the North Carolina farmers and mechanics had turned the tables by defeating the aggregation from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute by the score of 6 to 0. A few minutes after the receipt of this joyful news, not a few of those who had previously worn the Chapel Hill colors exchanged them for the Red and White of the A. and M.

The theatres were filled, to say nothing of the great places of amusement, and the whole city seemed to be in a ferment. The influx of college men that the game made the difference in the size of the crowd on Broad Street began shortly after 10 o'clock in the morning, when the rosters from the University of Virginia arrived at the Main Street Station over the Chesapeake and Ohio.

More than 300 strong, they marched down the station steps, led by the university band of several pieces, made up entirely of the students. Outside of the station they were lined up four abreast, and to the measures of the life and drum they made a quickstep to Broad, where they were merged with those who had come before.

The trains from the South brought the Carolina men, with their band and colors. Like their opponents, they threw themselves into the crowd.

A few minutes before the time for the game to be called the students formed themselves in line and followed their warriors to the field of battle, there going to the seats reserved for them to cheer their teams in victory or defeat.

Victorious Virginia formed a huge triumphal procession and followed the wearers of the V to the Jefferson Hotel after the struggle was over. The line at this time was augmented by hundreds of alumni of this city and elsewhere who turned out to cheer.

CREDIT IS DUE TO CLEAN ATHLETICS

So Says President Alderman. Splendid Reception Awaits the Team.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., November 26.—It was a splendid reception that awaited the Blue and White team as they entered the city yesterday morning. The credit is due to clean athletics, the alumni coach system, the support of the student body, and a splendid team that constantly grew better.—Edwin A. Alderman.

This little college town is happy tonight over Virginia's superb victory over North Carolina. It has been many a day since a varsity team has gone through an entire season without a single defeat, and this fact makes today's victory all the more sweet. Interest over the North Carolina game has been tense for the past forty-eight hours. Main Street assumed a holiday air early yesterday morning, when the students began to make ready for their departure to Richmond. The game was almost the sole topic of conversation. At the moving picture theatres photos of the Virginia players were flashed on the screen at every performance. The enthusiasm of the students permeated the townspeople, many of whom left in the football special this morning to witness the game.

The stay-at-homes gathered at the university this afternoon to hear a detailed report of the game. Though few in number, they made the campus ring with their cheers as Virginia continued to roll up the score. President Alderman lingered until the last returns had been received and joined heartily in applauding the good plays. An enthusiastic welcome awaits the team upon its return.

REGIMENT DEFEATED

Howitzers Win Game on Byrd Park Gridiron.

On the Byrd Park gridiron yesterday morning the Howitzers defeated the strong Regiment team by a score of 16 to 0. The game was replete with sensational features, although the Howitzers outplayed their opponents at every stage. The playing of West and Murphy for the Regiment team was but this, as far as one could see, made but little difference in the size of the crowd. It was not until they had closed for the night that the street resumed anything like its usual aspect.

The influx of college men that the game made the difference in the size of the crowd on Broad Street began shortly after 10 o'clock in the morning, when the rosters from the University of Virginia arrived at the Main Street Station over the Chesapeake and Ohio.

More than 300 strong, they marched down the station steps, led by the university band of several pieces, made up entirely of the students. Outside of the station they were lined up four abreast, and to the measures of the life and drum they made a quickstep to Broad, where they were merged with those who had come before.

The trains from the South brought the Carolina men, with their band and colors. Like their opponents, they threw themselves into the crowd.

A few minutes before the time for the game to be called the students formed themselves in line and followed their warriors to the field of battle, there going to the seats reserved for them to cheer their teams in victory or defeat.

Victorious Virginia formed a huge triumphal procession and followed the wearers of the V to the Jefferson Hotel after the struggle was over. The line at this time was augmented by hundreds of alumni of this city and elsewhere who turned out to cheer.

The result was nothing more than I expected. The University of Virginia has easily the best team in the South. The material is the best in many years.—Hammond Johnson, assistant coach and formerly star half back on Virginia.

"Our men were badly crippled and expected to be beaten, but not by so large a score. In spite of its weakness, however, the team fell far short of its usual form."—Captain Thomas, of North Carolina.

Virginia Wins in Fine Game Over Carolina

(Continued From First Page.)

hard to find. Many Orange and Blue supporters staked 2 to 1 on the game, and in some instances the stakes ran as high as 3 to 1 on Virginia.

Captain Thomas's absence from the game is said to have been Carolina's greatest drawback. He was on the sidelines during the game, and even defeat seemed inevitable for the Tarheels, and must be said to have played the cleaner game. It was just after the second touchdown that Full Back Crosswell was replaced by Belden.

Crosswell was operated on for appendicitis in September, and the wound caused him to retire. There were no other substitutions during the half. Carolina appeared bewildered after Virginia had scored twice on touchdowns, and the last two scores in the first half were made with comparatively little effort. The whole Virginia team played together.

Carolina Bruised.
The halves were separated by an intermission of fifteen minutes. The Tarheels benefited by the lapse, and showed up much stronger after play was resumed. Virginia was still able to gain, but Carolina's defense appeared stronger, and the gains were shortened. It was soon after the half opened that Virginia began to supply fresh men for those who had played from the beginning.

Heat told on the players, and on nearly every play some one was stretched out. Vetterlein was put in Yancey's place at full back. Gooch replaced Stanton just after the latter had wound up a spectacular play by running fifty yards for a touchdown. Frasier took Neff's place; Taylor replaced Elliott.

Soon after line substitutions began, Phillips replaced Caffee, who had proved himself a wonder in the line. Carolina also replaced worn-out players by fresh men, and their line-up was much changed before the game ended. Several players had their sweaters torn from their bodies. All of those taking part in the game were besmeared in mud, and several of the players were bloody from injuries.

THE GAME IN DETAIL

North Carolina won the toss, and chose to kick off to Virginia at the eastern goal. Crosswell returned the ball ten yards, and, failing on downs, Crosswell punted to the forty-five-yard line, getting the ball on a fumble. Williams made three yards through tackle, but Dunlap lost ground. Carolina kicked to Stanton, Virginia's right half back, who failed to gain. Virginia was penalized fifteen yards for holding, and then kicked to Williams, who ran three yards to the thirty-yard line. Carolina punted out to Virginia, who made five yards. Stanton went through tackle for four yards, and Yancey bucked the line for five more.

Stanton went round end for three, and Yancey again went through Carolina's line for four yards. Carolina held on the fifteen-yard line, and on the third attempt forward pass. Virginia lost the penalty of fifteen yards. Honaker tried an inside kick, and Carolina fell on the ball on the twenty-five-yard line. Crosswell failed to go through, and then punted out to the forty-five-yard line.

Yancey went twenty yards, but was overhauled by Crosswell. Neff went round right end for ten yards, and Stanton pulled off twelve more round the opposite end after he had dragged his tackle several yards. He gained to within a yard of the goal, and Yancey made the rest of the distance, scoring the first touchdown within five minutes after play was begun. Cecil kicked goal, and the score stood, Virginia, 6; North Carolina, 0.

Carolina's Ball on Fumble.
Carolina received the kick-off at the goal, and Virginia went to the thirty-yard line. Yancey fumbled, and Cecil punted to the forty-five-yard line. Williams gained three yards, but Carolina failed on the forward pass, and it was Virginia's ball on the thirty-yard line. Cecil punted out to center field. Punters were exchanged, and the pigskin was placed in center field in Virginia's possession. Honaker swept round end on one of his famous quarter back plays for thirty-three yards; six more were made, and time was called.

The Second Half.
In the second half Virginia received the kick off at the western goal. Neff advanced to the thirty-yard line. The ball changed hands twice, and Honaker went thirty yards, but was brought back for holding in the line. The teams lined up on Carolina's thirty-six-yard line. Yancey failed on a line plunge, and Virginia punted to the fifty-five-yard line.

Carolina was unable to gain on a fake kick and on a punt, and lost ten yards, and the ball went over on the thirty-yard line. Stanton broke through the line for six yards, and gained seven more round end. Yancey went five through, but Neff hurried, and his eleven was penalized fifteen yards. Carolina caught Honaker's on-side kick, and Manning dashed round end for ten yards. Carolina got the ball on their forty-five-yard line, and Manning punted to Virginia's thirty-five-yard line. Carolina fell on the ball, but Neff got the pigskin on the next fumble, but was tackled by Rogers on the thirty-yard line.

The ball was brought back fifteen yards for holding. Virginia was forced to kick, and Williams returned the ball twenty yards to the fifty-two-yard line. Carolina could not gain round end or through the line, and Belden was forced to punt. The ball sailed through the air fifty-five yards and over the goal line. Virginia kicked out from the twenty-five-yard line. Williams was successful in making his distance, and landed on the thirty-five-yard line. Falling on downs, Belden punted, and Neff heeled for a fair catch. A Carolina player tackled him, and the Tarheels were penalized fifteen yards. Virginia received a penalty for holding, but at length got the ball on Carolina's thirty-five-yard line. Neff kicked out to Tillet on the fifty-yard line, but the latter fumbled. Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

ball behind the Carolina goal. A Carolina man was tackled with the ball behind the line, and the Charlottesville eleven was given two points.

First Substitution.
Twice during the game after Virginia had carried the ball over the goal line it was brought back and the Charlottesville eleven penalized. North Carolina lost very little ground by penalties, and must be said to have played the cleaner game. It was just after the second touchdown that Full Back Crosswell was replaced by Belden.

Crosswell was operated on for appendicitis in September, and the wound caused him to retire. There were no other substitutions during the half. Carolina appeared bewildered after Virginia had scored twice on touchdowns, and the last two scores in the first half were made with comparatively little effort. The whole Virginia team played together.

Carolina Bruised.
The halves were separated by an intermission of fifteen minutes. The Tarheels benefited by the lapse, and showed up much stronger after play was resumed. Virginia was still able to gain, but Carolina's defense appeared stronger, and the gains were shortened. It was soon after the half opened that Virginia began to supply fresh men for those who had played from the beginning.

Heat told on the players, and on nearly every play some one was stretched out. Vetterlein was put in Yancey's place at full back. Gooch replaced Stanton just after the latter had wound up a spectacular play by running fifty yards for a touchdown. Frasier took Neff's place; Taylor replaced Elliott.

Soon after line substitutions began, Phillips replaced Caffee, who had proved himself a wonder in the line. Carolina also replaced worn-out players by fresh men, and their line-up was much changed before the game ended. Several players had their sweaters torn from their bodies. All of those taking part in the game were besmeared in mud, and several of the players were bloody from injuries.

THE GAME IN DETAIL

North Carolina won the toss, and chose to kick off to Virginia at the eastern goal. Crosswell returned the ball ten yards, and, failing on downs, Crosswell punted to the forty-five-yard line, getting the ball on a fumble. Williams made three yards through tackle, but Dunlap lost ground. Carolina kicked to Stanton, Virginia's right half back, who failed to gain. Virginia was penalized fifteen yards for holding, and then kicked to Williams, who ran three yards to the thirty-yard line. Carolina punted out to Virginia, who made five yards. Stanton went through tackle for four yards, and Yancey bucked the line for five more.

Stanton went round end for three, and Yancey again went through Carolina's line for four yards. Carolina held on the fifteen-yard line, and on the third attempt forward pass. Virginia lost the penalty of fifteen yards. Honaker tried an inside kick, and Carolina fell on the ball on the twenty-five-yard line. Crosswell failed to go through, and then punted out to the forty-five-yard line.

Yancey went twenty yards, but was overhauled by Crosswell. Neff went round right end for ten yards, and Stanton pulled off twelve more round the opposite end after he had dragged his tackle several yards. He gained to within a yard of the goal, and Yancey made the rest of the distance, scoring the first touchdown within five minutes after play was begun. Cecil kicked goal, and the score stood, Virginia, 6; North Carolina, 0.

Carolina's Ball on Fumble.
Carolina received the kick-off at the goal, and Virginia went to the thirty-yard line. Yancey fumbled, and Cecil punted to the forty-five-yard line. Williams gained three yards, but Carolina failed on the forward pass, and it was Virginia's ball on the thirty-yard line. Cecil punted out to center field. Punters were exchanged, and the pigskin was placed in center field in Virginia's possession. Honaker swept round end on one of his famous quarter back plays for thirty-three yards; six more were made, and time was called.

The Second Half.
In the second half Virginia received the kick off at the western goal. Neff advanced to the thirty-yard line. The ball changed hands twice, and Honaker went thirty yards, but was brought back for holding in the line. The teams lined up on Carolina's thirty-six-yard line. Yancey failed on a line plunge, and Virginia punted to the fifty-five-yard line.

Carolina was unable to gain on a fake kick and on a punt, and lost ten yards, and the ball went over on the thirty-yard line. Stanton broke through the line for six yards, and gained seven more round end. Yancey went five through, but Neff hurried, and his eleven was penalized fifteen yards. Carolina caught Honaker's on-side kick, and Manning dashed round end for ten yards. Carolina got the ball on their forty-five-yard line, and Manning punted to Virginia's thirty-five-yard line. Carolina fell on the ball, but Neff got the pigskin on the next fumble, but was tackled by Rogers on the thirty-yard line.

The ball was brought back fifteen yards for holding. Virginia was forced to kick, and Williams returned the ball twenty yards to the fifty-two-yard line. Carolina could not gain round end or through the line, and Belden was forced to punt. The ball sailed through the air fifty-five yards and over the goal line. Virginia kicked out from the twenty-five-yard line. Williams was successful in making his distance, and landed on the thirty-five-yard line. Falling on downs, Belden punted, and Neff heeled for a fair catch. A Carolina player tackled him, and the Tarheels were penalized fifteen yards. Virginia received a penalty for holding, but at length got the ball on Carolina's thirty-five-yard line. Neff kicked out to Tillet on the fifty-yard line, but the latter fumbled. Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

ers by fresh men, and their line-up was much changed before the game ended. Several players had their sweaters torn from their bodies. All of those taking part in the game were besmeared in mud, and several of the players were bloody from injuries.

Stanton the Star.
Stanton, at half back for Virginia, was the great star of the game. In offensive as well as defensive work he proved a wonder. He was, with Honaker, Virginia's most consistent ground gainer, and as well figured in most of the offensive plays. He was conspicuous on the field in encouraging the men to play, to avoid Carolina's scoring. He made long runs, and several times regained the ball in scrimmages.

Honaker, at quarter back for the Orange and Blue eleven, figured next to Stanton in spectacular work. He is not credited with a single fumble, and frequently gained when he called upon himself to carry the ball. He went through the whole game without an injury. Neff and Yancey were powers behind the line, and showed a remarkable knowledge of the game.

Carrett, left tackle, played the best game for Carolina. His strength was in getting through to make tackles. Williams, at half back, Tillet, at quarter, Belden, full back, and Wiggins, end, understood the game and played well. There was little glory from a Carolina standpoint, however, and in all positions the Virginians were superior.

Carrett, left tackle, played the best game for Carolina. His strength was in getting through to make tackles. Williams, at half back, Tillet, at quarter, Belden, full back, and Wiggins, end, understood the game and played well. There was little glory from a Carolina standpoint, however, and in all positions the Virginians were superior.

Carrett, left tackle, played the best game for Carolina. His strength was in getting through to make tackles. Williams, at half back, Tillet, at quarter, Belden, full back, and Wiggins, end, understood the game and played well. There was little glory from a Carolina standpoint, however, and in all positions the Virginians were superior.

THE GAME IN DETAIL

North Carolina won the toss, and chose to kick off to Virginia at the eastern goal. Crosswell returned the ball ten yards, and, failing on downs, Crosswell punted to the forty-five-yard line, getting the ball on a fumble. Williams made three yards through tackle, but Dunlap lost ground. Carolina kicked to Stanton, Virginia's right half back, who failed to gain. Virginia was penalized fifteen yards for holding, and then kicked to Williams, who ran three yards to the thirty-yard line. Carolina punted out to Virginia, who made five yards. Stanton went through tackle for four yards, and Yancey bucked the line for five more.

Stanton went round end for three, and Yancey again went through Carolina's line for four yards. Carolina held on the fifteen-yard line, and on the third attempt forward pass. Virginia lost the penalty of fifteen yards. Honaker tried an inside kick, and Carolina fell on the ball on the twenty-five-yard line. Crosswell failed to go through, and then punted out to the forty-five-yard line.

Yancey went twenty yards, but was overhauled by Crosswell. Neff went round right end for ten yards, and Stanton pulled off twelve more round the opposite end after he had dragged his tackle several yards. He gained to within a yard of the goal, and Yancey made the rest of the distance, scoring the first touchdown within five minutes after play was begun. Cecil kicked goal, and the score stood, Virginia, 6; North Carolina, 0.

Carolina's Ball on Fumble.
Carolina received the kick-off at the goal, and Virginia went to the thirty-yard line. Yancey fumbled, and Cecil punted to the forty-five-yard line. Williams gained three yards, but Carolina failed on the forward pass, and it was Virginia's ball on the thirty-yard line. Cecil punted out to center field. Punters were exchanged, and the pigskin was placed in center field in Virginia's possession. Honaker swept round end on one of his famous quarter back plays for thirty-three yards; six more were made, and time was called.

The Second Half.
In the second half Virginia received the kick off at the western goal. Neff advanced to the thirty-yard line. The ball changed hands twice, and Honaker went thirty yards, but was brought back for holding in the line. The teams lined up on Carolina's thirty-six-yard line. Yancey failed on a line plunge, and Virginia punted to the fifty-five-yard line.

Carolina was unable to gain on a fake kick and on a punt, and lost ten yards, and the ball went over on the thirty-yard line. Stanton broke through the line for six yards, and gained seven more round end. Yancey went five through, but Neff hurried, and his eleven was penalized fifteen yards. Carolina caught Honaker's on-side kick, and Manning dashed round end for ten yards. Carolina got the ball on their forty-five-yard line, and Manning punted to Virginia's thirty-five-yard line. Carolina fell on the ball, but Neff got the pigskin on the next fumble, but was tackled by Rogers on the thirty-yard line.

The ball was brought back fifteen yards for holding. Virginia was forced to kick, and Williams returned the ball twenty yards to the fifty-two-yard line. Carolina could not gain round end or through the line, and Belden was forced to punt. The ball sailed through the air fifty-five yards and over the goal line. Virginia kicked out from the twenty-five-yard line. Williams was successful in making his distance, and landed on the thirty-five-yard line. Falling on downs, Belden punted, and Neff heeled for a fair catch. A Carolina player tackled him, and the Tarheels were penalized fifteen yards. Virginia received a penalty for holding, but at length got the ball on Carolina's thirty-five-yard line. Neff kicked out to Tillet on the fifty-yard line, but the latter fumbled. Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

BIJOU RINGS WITH WILD COLLEGE CHEERS

VICTORY IS WON BY WAKE FOREST

Virginia Debaters Are Defeated at Raleigh in the Annual Contest.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
RALEIGH, N. C., November 26.—Wake Forest College won in the Thanksgiving debate tonight. The Randolph-Macon on the question, "Resolved, That injunctions ought to be allowed as a means of preventing strikes." Wake Forest championing the negative. The debaters were J. S. Martin and F. T. Collins, for Wake Forest, and H. S. Duffey and E. L. Fox, for Randolph-Macon.

It was conceded that in both arguments and delivery the debaters were pretty evenly matched, but Wake Forest won out on a technical construction of the question that it involved all strikes, whether maintained with violence or not, insisting that there should be no injunctions, certainly when there was no violence in connection with the strike.

The judges were Chief Justice Walter Clark and Associate Justice H. G. Connor, of the Supreme Court, and ex-Judge Thomas B. Womack.

to kick, and Williams returned the ball twenty yards to the fifty-two-yard line. Carolina could not gain round end or through the line, and Belden was forced to punt. The ball sailed through the air fifty-five yards and over the goal line. Virginia kicked out from the twenty-five-yard line. Williams was successful in making his distance, and landed on the thirty-five-yard line. Falling on downs, Belden punted, and Neff heeled for a fair catch. A Carolina player tackled him, and the Tarheels were penalized fifteen yards. Virginia received a penalty for holding, but at length got the ball on Carolina's thirty-five-yard line. Neff kicked out to Tillet on the fifty-yard line, but the latter fumbled. Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

THE GAME IN DETAIL

North Carolina won the toss, and chose to kick off to Virginia at the eastern goal. Crosswell returned the ball ten yards, and, failing on downs, Crosswell punted to the forty-five-yard line, getting the ball on a fumble. Williams made three yards through tackle, but Dunlap lost ground. Carolina kicked to Stanton, Virginia's right half back, who failed to gain. Virginia was penalized fifteen yards for holding, and then kicked to Williams, who ran three yards to the thirty-yard line. Carolina punted out to Virginia, who made five yards. Stanton went through tackle for four yards, and Yancey bucked the line for five more.

Stanton went round end for three, and Yancey again went through Carolina's line for four yards. Carolina held on the fifteen-yard line, and on the third attempt forward pass. Virginia lost the penalty of fifteen yards. Honaker tried an inside kick, and Carolina fell on the ball on the twenty-five-yard line. Crosswell failed to go through, and then punted out to the forty-five-yard line.

Yancey went twenty yards, but was overhauled by Crosswell. Neff went round right end for ten yards, and Stanton pulled off twelve more round the opposite end after he had dragged his tackle several yards. He gained to within a yard of the goal, and Yancey made the rest of the distance, scoring the first touchdown within five minutes after play was begun. Cecil kicked goal, and the score stood, Virginia, 6; North Carolina, 0.

Carolina's Ball on Fumble.
Carolina received the kick-off at the goal, and Virginia went to the thirty-yard line. Yancey fumbled, and Cecil punted to the forty-five-yard line. Williams gained three yards, but Carolina failed on the forward pass, and it was Virginia's ball on the thirty-yard line. Cecil punted out to center field. Punters were exchanged, and the pigskin was placed in center field in Virginia's possession. Honaker swept round end on one of his famous quarter back plays for thirty-three yards; six more were made, and time was called.

The Second Half.
In the second half Virginia received the kick off at the western goal. Neff advanced to the thirty-yard line. The ball changed hands twice, and Honaker went thirty yards, but was brought back for holding in the line. The teams lined up on Carolina's thirty-six-yard line. Yancey failed on a line plunge, and Virginia punted to the fifty-five-yard line.

Carolina was unable to gain on a fake kick and on a punt, and lost ten yards, and the ball went over on the thirty-yard line. Stanton broke through the line for six yards, and gained seven more round end. Yancey went five through, but Neff hurried, and his eleven was penalized fifteen yards. Carolina caught Honaker's on-side kick, and Manning dashed round end for ten yards. Carolina got the ball on their forty-five-yard line, and Manning punted to Virginia's thirty-five-yard line. Carolina fell on the ball, but Neff got the pigskin on the next fumble, but was tackled by Rogers on the thirty-yard line.

The ball was brought back fifteen yards for holding. Virginia was forced to kick, and Williams returned the ball twenty yards to the fifty-two-yard line. Carolina could not gain round end or through the line, and Belden was forced to punt. The ball sailed through the air fifty-five yards and over the goal line. Virginia kicked out from the twenty-five-yard line. Williams was successful in making his distance, and landed on the thirty-five-yard line. Falling on downs, Belden punted, and Neff heeled for a fair catch. A Carolina player tackled him, and the Tarheels were penalized fifteen yards. Virginia received a penalty for holding, but at length got the ball on Carolina's thirty-five-yard line. Neff kicked out to Tillet on the fifty-yard line, but the latter fumbled. Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Yancey was here supplanted by Vetterlein. Carolina kicked to Stanton on the forty-yard line. Virginia was penalized two yards for calling "time out" for the fourth time.

Virginia's "War-hoo-war" Song Answered by Cries from Tarheels in Boxes.

SOCIETY AND ROOTERS UNITE

Stars from Gridiron Forget Enmity and Join in Great Celebration.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
All thought of enmity gone with the last sound of the referee's whistle on the Broad Street gridiron, the supporters of both the University of Virginia and the University of North Carolina thronged the Bijou Theatre last night and vied with one another in cheering the colors which they had a few hours before so strenuously opposed on the field and the grand stand. Every seat from the front row of the orchestra to the topmost point of the "peanut" gallery was taken long before the curtain went up, and it seemed that there was not one in the audience who did not sing and cheer with the boys who wore the orange and blue of Virginia, or the blue and white of North Carolina. The order was the best, but in spite of the attention paid to the cast of "The Man on the Box" by far the greatest amount of applause went to the boys who stood up and sang college songs between the acts.

Many Decorations in Theatre.
In anticipation of the celebration the management of the theatre had made special arrangements, in the way of decorations notably. The boxes on the right of the stage were draped with the colors of the University of Virginia, while those to the left from the side-lines yesterday afternoon, though with much weakened voices. A noticeable feature of the demonstration was the presence of a number of young women who had shared in the victory and the defeat, and who stood cheering and singing for the colors they wore.

The greatest demonstration of the evening, perhaps, was that which occurred at the end of the first act, when the Virginia delegation as a man rose singing the historic "War-hoo-war" and ending with three cheers for the University of North Carolina. Hardly had the leader taken his seat when the representatives of the Old North State rose and returned the courtesy in a strong and snappy song of their own. Then the whole house seemed to catch the fever, and almost every one from the bottom to the top joined in a neutral melody under the direction of the chief rooters. Afterwards every one applauded loud and long, while the actors waited for the noise to subside before coming before the footlights.

Football Scores

V. F. L. 5; A. and M. College, 6.
William and Mary, 17; Hampden-Sydney, 0.
Pennsylvania, 17; Cornell, 4.
George Washington, 5; Bucknell, 5.
Washington and Lee, 12; Georgetown, 11.
Carleton, 17; St. Louis University, 0.
Kansas, 10; Missouri, 4.
Pennsylvania State, 12; University of Pittsburgh, 6.
Fordham, 21; Villa Nova, 0.
Notre Dame, 17; Marquette, 0.
Washington and Jefferson, 30; Carnegie Tech., 0.
Tulane, 11; Washington University, of St. Louis, 0.
Mercer, 45; Howard, 0.
Clemson, 0.
University of Arkansas, 30; Louisiana State University, 30; University of Arkansas, 0.
Lafayette, 12; Dickinson, 0.
Rose Polytechnic, 6; Butler, 0.
University of Colorado, 15; Colorado State School of Mines, 0.
University of Alabama, 4; University of Tennessee, 0.
Vanderbilt, 6; Sewanee, 0.
Technical, 30; Clemson, 6.
Ohio State University, 10; Kenyon, 0.
Ronnoge College (junior team), 13; Ronnoge College (soph.), 0.
St. Albans College, 0; Kings College, 20.

Experts Give Opinions of Game

"Neither team played in its usual good form, but Virginia far outclassed North Carolina in every department of the game. I have seen Stanton in all of his big games, and he always plays well. As a defensive player he is undoubtedly the best in the South. I consider him strong all-American timber."—Mr. Pope, of Harvard, head line-man in yesterday's game.

"The result was nothing more than I expected. The University of Virginia has easily the best team in the South. The material is the best in many years."—Hammond Johnson, assistant coach and formerly star half back on Virginia.